

NEW MEXICO STATE UNIVERSITY AUTISM DIAGNOSTIC CENTER

About Us

At the Autism Diagnostic Center (ADC), we primarily provide assessment services for Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD). As well, the ADC is dedicated to providing outreach through behavioral services to families of children with ASD through interventions based on the science of Applied Behavior Analysis with upcoming opportunities to participate in research studies

What We Do

Currently, the ADC is looking for families who are experiencing some behavioral difficulties at home with their child with ASD between the ages of 5 and 14 to participate in RUBI Parent Training for Disruptive Behavior. The program focuses on skill building with families in the areas of positive behavioral strategies, routine building and maintenance, compliance with directions, and functional communication training. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, sessions will be conducted via telehealth.

If you are interested in learning more, please contact Dr. MacKenzie Sidwell at msidwell@nmsu.edu to learn more about the program and determine if your family is a good fit!